SWORD OF THE GOLDEN HILT The sword of honor presented to Prince Bismarck by Emperior William at the military festival at Frederichsruhe, on March 26, is a veritable masterpiece of artistic metal work. The pom-mel of the hilt is adorned with a portrait of the Emperor in the shape of a cameo. The likeness is surprising, and the wonderfully fine carving rises in ivory color from the moss-green background. The cameo is set in a band of gold, which is ornamented with dia-monds and rubies. The hilt and swordguard are of solid gold, richly ornament-ed; on the outside of the guard are the arms of the Prince, the golden clover leaf with the three silver oak leaves set in between, surmounted by the princely coronet; the motto, "In trinitate robur" (In trinity there is strength), is worked in repousse upon a scroll running under the arms. The nether part of the sword-guard is chased, the motive of decoration being the imperial eagle, upon whose wings are fastened the arms of Alsace and Lorraine. The blade is beautifully chiseled, the design bear-ing the initials "W. I. R." under the ing the initials "W. I. R." under the imperial crown; beneath are seen two crossed guns. This side of the blade bears the following inscription: "To Prince Bismarck, Duke of Lauenburg, at his 80th anniversary, April 1, 1895." On the other side of the blade are engraved the arms of the Prince, surrounded by the chain and insignia of the order of the Black Eagle, and his now famous exclamation: "We Germand of the Code but nothing else in the now famous exclamation: "We Germans fear God, but nothing else in the world." The scabbard of the sword is of steel, nickeled and fitted with gold The sword was designed by the painter, Emil Deepler.

SWEPT THROUGH A SEWER. The swift rush of storm water in the sewer under Willow street swept two men from St. John street to the Delaware river, drowning one of them, while the other was none the worse for his rough trip underground. The two men were Stephen Borden and Gustave West. Borden was drowned. Both of the men have been employed in the morocco factory of J. A. Duncan for some time past. It was their duty from time to time to clean out the waste pipes leading into the sewer, which is a lively stream running in the bed of old Pegg's Run. They were warned by Mr. Duncan Monday not to go into the while the other was none the worse for his rough trip underground. The two men were Stephen Borden and Gustave

Mr. Duncan Monday not to go into the sewer because of the heavy rain during the day, but they disregarded the in-They had hardly reached the main sewer, through a manhole between the Reading Railroad tracks, on Willow street, near St. John street, when West noticed that the current was unusually strong. He warned Borden to be careful, because he knew he could not swim, but before he had completed the warning, his fellow-workman had been tak-en off his feet. As he fell Borden grab-bed West around the waist, and both men shot, with startling rapidity, through the dark sewer toward the river. West confesses that he strug-gled hard to free himself from Borden's grasp, and finally succeeded.

When both were finally shot far out into the river, West, who is a skillful swimmer, and whose youth was in his favor, came to the surface of the water, and was rescued by the tug boat Joseph Lincoln. Borden, however, was drowned, and the body has not yet been recovered. As a matter of course, West does not know how his companion perished, as he had all he could do to save himself, even after he was free to move his limbs.
